4 relating to: creating a right for minority unit owners to object to the
5 amendment of certain condominium documents.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill provides that, if a single person or two or more persons acting jointly by formal agreement have the power to unilaterally amend certain condominium documents, a simple majority of unit owners may object in writing to an amendment proposed by the person or persons. If a simple majority of unit owners objects, the proposed amendment is void.

For purposes of an objection vote, a unit owner is entitled to one vote, regardless of the number of units owned by the unit owner or the number of votes appurtenant to the units owned by the unit owner, and the person or persons that proposed the amendment are entitled to one vote, regardless of the number of persons, the number of units owned by the persons, or the number of votes appurtenant to the units owned by the persons.

Under current law, the following condominium documents may be amended as follows:

1. A condominium declaration or plat may be amended by two-thirds of the aggregate votes established in the declaration, unless the declaration provides for a greater percentage.

BILL

2. Bylaws may be amended by 67 percent of the votes.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 703.09 (2) of the statutes is renumbered 703.09 (2) (a) and amended

5 written consent of at least two-thirds of the aggregate of the votes established under

7 acting jointly by formal agreement have the power to unilaterally amend the bylaws
8 under par. (a), a simple majority of unit owners may object in writing to an
