ASSOCIATIONS INSTITUTE

CAI Legal Forum: California Communities

Oct. 21, 2016 | Indian Wells, CA

COMMUNITY ASSOCIATIONS INSTITUTE (CAI), the worldwide leader in building better communities, invites you to a special, one-day event on key legal topics that affect every common-interest community in California.

With more than 40 years of industry experience and a member network of homeowners, managers, attorneys, and other business partners nearly 34,000 strong, CAI is in a unique position to deliver both a local focus and a global perspective on the issues that shape community association governance and operations.

The CAI Legal Forum offers education sessions for community managers, board members, and homeowner leaders. Sessions are presented by expert panels, including government officials, seasoned management professionals, and other community association professionals; including members of CAI's prestigious College of Community Association Lawyers (CCAL), a professional organization that represents the very best attorneys in the industry.

Anyone who lives in, works for, or provides services to a California community association will leave the event more informed, more engaged, and able to contribute effectively to a successful community.

Short-Term Rentals: Long-Term Enforcement Strategies

One of the most persistent problems facing associations today is short-term rentals. Homeowners are reaping significant financial benefits and websites such as Airbnb and VRBO have made short-term renting in community associations more prevalent. This lively discussion explores the impact of short-term rentals on association resources and community values. The presentation offers options for adopting and implementing rental provisions, as well as case studies on how to enforce violations effectively.

Maximizing Directors and Officers Liability Insurance Coverage and Indemnity for Claims against Managers, Directors, and Community Associations

Community association management becomes more complex every day, and legal challenges and claims related to basic operations, management contracts, and board policies arise. Claims can arise from neighbor disputes, breach of contract, alleged discrimination, trespass, employer liability, improper voting and elections, wrongful assessment collection, and more. Is the association covered appropriately under the association's Directors and Officers policies? Learn how associations can handle such claims while protecting managers and board members.

Mobile App

It's a paper-lite event! In an effort to be environmentally responsible, we are providing all Legal Forum handouts digitally. Electronic handouts will replace paper and will be accessible online after Oct. 1, during and after the Forum. A digital version of our on-site brochure will be posted on the Legal Forum web page during the event and can be accessed via the mobile application for easy reference.

The Politics of it All

Election Day is just a few weeks away, and politics are on everyone's mind. This year's presidential election should prove to be contentious because every U.S. citizen has a strong opinion about the candidates running for office. The 2016 presidential election is one of many changes in office anticipated this year—confirmation of new Supreme Court Justices and filling Congressional seats will also be big issues. Learn what to expect this dynamic election year during this informational presentation.

It's a Bird, It's a Plane, No ... It's a Drone!

How can associations chart this airspace? This presentation addresses the current landscape of drone laws in California and throughout the U.S., presents analysis on what community associations can and should do about drones, and explains how to develop protocols and policies to best regulate drone operation.

Slippery When Wet: Managing the Risk of Water Losses

Community associations are vulnerable to property losses, especially those caused by water damage. Associations rely on community managers to help protect association assets by ensuring an association's insurance and risk management program is as effective as possible. This presentation tackles water-related losses head-on and gives you the information you need to understand processing and managing water loss insurance policies, as well as how to approach managing risk with insurance coverage, governing document provisions, and water loss policies.

The Good, The Bad, and The Ugly: A Guide to HOA Law

This presentation explores multiple scenarios and case studies about the everyday governance in community associations and offers managers essential strategies for navigating related legal issues. Learn how to approach defamation claims against and on behalf of community associations, board members, and managers; contract provisions, such as insurance, liability, and arbitration clauses; and productive mediation and arbitration methods. Key takeaways include practical theories, remedies, and defenses for both associations and managers.

Proactive Strategies for Handling Specific Challenges of Elderly Residents: Their Rights, Needs, and the HOA's Responsibilities

As the population ages and lives longer, community associations face issues that affect elderly residents, such as neglect, loss of mental function, death, disability, and injury. Most common-interest communities are not equipped to handle these issues and often are unprepared when they arise. As the fiercely independent Baby Boomer generation grows older, associations should proactively plan to handle issues related to aging. This presentation examines community associations' legal responsibilities and provides practical solutions.

HOAs in the Digital Age: Social Media and Internet Presence in Associations

Our world is growing increasingly digital, and associations are not immune to the effects of the digital age. With new technology and internet resources, the omnipresent "cloud" and increasingly tech-savvy owners, how can boards and managers balance making use of such resources? Find out how associations and owners can benefit from social media and internet presence while avoiding potential issues, how associations should integrate technology, and where to draw the line.

Disabilities and Assistance Animals in HOAs: Reasonable Accommodations

The topic of associations and assistance animals for individuals with disabilities can be confusing, and statutes surrounding the matter are ever-evolving. The State Department of Fair Employment and Housing is adopting new regulations concerning assistance and service animals, including new guidelines for reasonable accommodations to a disability. This presentation gives you the latest information on this important topic that affects all community associations.

How to Enforce the Course

Rules enforcement within community associations can be challenging, but it doesn't have to be. This presentation reviews a 12-step process detailing how managers and board members can enforce community association policies and governing documents effectively—including rules, architectural review committee guidelines, and CC&Rs. This in-depth discussion addresses everything from violation letters, hearings, internal and alternate dispute resolution, lawsuits, and more.

State of the Industry

CAI offers a comprehensive picture of the industry informed by community association volunteer leaders, professional managers, community management firms, and other professionals and companies that provide products and services to associations, as well as Legislative Action Committees that support responsible governance. Hear about the challenges, opportunities, and trends affecting community associations and their management professionals.

I Can't Believe You Said That! Community Association Liability for the Written and Spoken Word

We live and work in a society where people speak, write, blog, post, or tweet whatever they may be feeling at the moment—without a filter. While certain community association speech is protected, there is a growing concern that some of the words we use in our communities not only engender resentment and hostility, but also place the association, its board, and managers at risk of liability. This interactive presentation reviews the law of defamation in the community association setting and engages participants to develop best practices for association communication.

Hot Topics for 2017 and Beyond

This presentation delivers an overview of issues expected to impact California community associations in 2017. How can associations manage and maintain golf courses when the sport is in decline? How will associations process the excessive requests for governing documents and sensitive information that needs to be redacted? And how will associations comply with the new California law that reallocates repair and replacement responsibility to the association for exclusive-use common areas that owners are responsible for maintaining? Get answers to these and other questions about what's in store for community associations in the next few years.
